PREFACE

The Census of Population 2020 was the sixth census carried out in Singapore since Independence and the fifteenth in the series of census taking from 1871. The census is the most comprehensive source of information on population and households and provides benchmark data for demographic and social statistics.

Similar to Census 2000 and 2010, Census 2020 adopted a register-based approach with a large-scale sample survey. Basic population count and characteristics were compiled from administrative records. More detailed information on language, economic characteristics, transport, religion, difficulty in performing basic activities as well as housing and household characteristics were obtained from a sample enumeration of about 150,000 households.

For Census 2020, a tri-modal data collection strategy comprising Internet enumeration, Computer-Assisted Telephone Interviewing (CATI) and face-to-face interviews using mobile devices was adopted to facilitate data collection for the households in the census sample. Leveraging technological advances, machine learning was also applied to improve the data processing processes.

The Census of Population 2020 Statistical Release 1 - Demographic Characteristics, Education, Language and Religion is the first of the two statistical publications on detailed census results. This release provides the broad trends and changes in the demographic characteristics, marriage and fertility, education, literacy and home language and religion of the resident population since 2010. The report comprises detailed statistical tables to facilitate users carrying out more comprehensive studies and analysis.

I would like to thank all who have, in one way or another, contributed to the success of Census 2020, which was conducted under challenging conditions with the evolving COVID-19 situation in 2020. My deep appreciation is extended to all participating households who had given their full support and co-operation to the Census. The contributions of government ministries and statutory boards, which provided pertinent information for Census 2020, are also gratefully acknowledged.

NOTES

Executive Summary

Singapore's total population grew by around 1.1 per cent a year between 2010 and 2020. The citizen population increased from 3.23 million to 3.52 million over this period, while the permanent resident population remained stable at around 0.5 million. Ethnic composition of the resident population¹ remained stable, with 74.3 per cent Chinese, 13.5 per cent Malays and 9.0 per cent Indians in 2020.

Marital Status

The proportion of singles rose across age groups, with the increase being the most prominent for residents aged 25-34 years. Between 2010 and 2020, the proportion of singles among residents aged 25-29 years rose from 74.6 per cent to 81.6 per cent for males, and from 54.0 per cent to 69.0 per cent for females. Similarly, the proportion of singles among those aged 30-34 years rose from 37.1 per cent to 41.9 per cent for males and from 25.1 per cent to 32.8 per cent for females over the same period.

Number of Children Born

Females generally had fewer children compared to a decade ago. The average number of children born to resident ever-married females aged 40-49 years decreased from 2.02 per female in 2010 to 1.76 per female in 2020.

Higher educated females had fewer children on average than those with lower educational qualifications. Among resident ever-married females aged 40-49 years, university graduates had an average of 1.66 children in 2020, lower than the average of 1.94 children among those with secondary qualification.

Educational Attainment

The education profile of the resident population improved between 2010 and 2020. Among residents aged 25 years and over in 2020, 58.3 per cent attained post-secondary or higher qualifications, up from 46.5 per cent in 2010. The Chinese, Malay and Indian communities all saw improvements in their educational attainment.

Females have made more significant progress in education. Among residents aged 55 years and over in 2020, the proportion with post-secondary or higher qualifications was 34.0 per cent for males and 22.8 per cent for females, a 11.2 percentage-points difference. This gap narrowed to a 2.4 percentage-points difference among those aged 35-44 years, with the proportion at 84.2 per cent for males and 81.8 per cent for females. Among younger residents aged 25-34 years, the proportion for females (90.2 per cent) marginally exceeded that for their male counterparts (90.0 per cent).

Literacy

Literacy rate remained high at 97.1 per cent in 2020. Multi-language literacy also remained high at 90.3 per cent among literate residents aged 15-24 years.

Language Spoken at Home

English was the language most frequently spoken at home for 48.3 per cent of residents aged 5 years and over in 2020, up from 32.3 per cent in 2010. Among the residents who spoke English most frequently at home, over 80 per cent also spoke a vernacular language at home.²

Religion

Singapore continued to be religiously diverse. Among residents aged 15 years and over in 2020, 31.1 per cent identified themselves as Buddhists, 8.8 per cent as Taoists, 18.9 per cent as Christians, 15.6 per cent as Muslims and 5.0 per cent as Hindus. Those with no religious affiliation made up 20.0 per cent in 2020, up from 17.0 per cent in 2010.

² Data on the language second most frequently spoken at home was first collected in 2020.

Introduction

INTRODUCTION

The Census of Population is conducted once in ten years by the Singapore Department of Statistics (DOS). It is the largest national statistical exercise undertaken in Singapore, collecting information on key characteristics of the population and households. The Census 2020 was the sixth census carried out since Singapore's Independence and the fifteenth in the series of census-taking in Singapore.

The Census of Population 2020 Statistical Release 1 - Demographic Characteristics, Education, Language and Religion is the first of two statistical publications on detailed census results. This release provides the broad trends and changes in the demographic characteristics, marriage and fertility, education, literacy and home language and religion of the resident population since 2010. The report comprises detailed statistical tables to facilitate users carrying out more comprehensive studies and analysis.

Census of Population – Concept and Coverage

Since 2000, Singapore's Census adopted the de jure concept for population estimates based on a person's place of usual residence. Under the de jure concept of "usual residence", Singapore residents (citizens and permanent residents) with valid local addresses and who were not away from Singapore for a continuous period of 12 months or longer were included in the total population count in Census 2020. Non-residents comprising foreigners who were working, studying or living in Singapore but not granted permanent residence were also included in the total population. The transient population, such as tourists and short-term visitors, was excluded.

Register-based Census of Population

Similar to the last two Censuses, the Census 2020 adopted a register-based approach, supplemented with a large-scale sample survey. Basic population count and characteristics such as age, sex, ethnic group, place of birth, type of dwelling and geographical distribution of place of residence were obtained from administrative records from multiple sources.

Sample Enumeration

A sample enumeration of some 150,000 households was conducted to obtain additional information not available from administrative sources. The sample survey supplemented the register-based data with detailed survey information on selected topics including language, transport, household characteristics and new data on geographic distribution of workplace and difficulty in performing basic activities.

Tri-Modal Data Collection Strategy

To facilitate data collection for the sample enumeration, the Census 2020 adopted a tri-modal data collection strategy. The tri-modal approach was first successfully implemented in the Census 2000 and improved on in Census 2010. In 2020, it comprised Internet Enumeration, Computer-Assisted Telephone Interviewing (CATI) and face-to-face interviews using mobile devices.

Available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, Internet enumeration provided respondents with the flexibility to provide their Census returns anytime, anywhere, using any Internet-accessible device (e.g. desktop, laptop, tablet or smartphone), without having to go through a third party (i.e. the interviewer). In the light of the COVID-19 situation, this mode allowed respondents to complete their Census without the need for physical interaction with the field interviewer.

For respondents who were unable to complete their returns via the Internet, CATI was an alternative with no face-to-face contact. Respondents called the Census 2020 Hotline to provide their returns over the phone with the assistance of CATI interviewers. CATI interviewers also contacted households which did not complete their returns by a stipulated date for telephone interviews.

The COVID-19 pandemic and ensuing Circuit Breaker and other safe management measures implemented nationwide meant that adjustments had to be made to ensure the continued participation by households. DOS used data analytics to monitor progress and optimise operational efficiency in the outreach and follow-up. With delays in responses due to the pandemic and measures, DOS sent more reminder letters to encourage respondents to respond through Internet or CATI, while physical visits to households were reduced.

For households which did not respond via the Internet and could not be contacted by CATI after several attempts, field interviewers made visits to conduct face-to-face interviews. Respondents who preferred to be contacted in person could also opt for the face-to-face interviews.

Mobile tablets were used in the Census 2020 field collection. The use of tablets to submit responses via web-based form enhanced the data security for respondents' returns. Data were captured and updated to the system directly and authentication processes and security measures were in place to prevent unauthorised access. Automatic branching of questions, consistency checks and electronically coded data were captured directly in the field and designed to reduce back-end processing efforts.

Data Processing and Reports

Census returns submitted from the various data collection modes were then processed for statistical coding, data validation, editing and verification of records to ensure consistency and data quality. Machine learning was first adopted in the coding process in Census 2020, which helped to reduce the manpower resource and time taken for data processing.

After stringent quality checks and the completion of data processing, statistical reports by specific topics, together with detailed statistical tables were prepared for public release.

DEMOGRAPHIC CHARACTERISTICS

Population Size and Growth

Between 2010 and 2020, Singapore's total population grew by around 1.1 per cent a year. The citizen population grew from 3.23 million to 3.52 million and the permanent resident population remained stable at around 0.5 million (Table 1.1).

The total population fell by 0.3 per cent to 5.69 million in 2020 from 5.70 million in 2019, mainly due to a 2.1 per cent decrease in the non-resident population in the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic and the consequent uncertain economic conditions.

Age Structure

Singapore's resident population continued to age. Residents aged 65 years and over formed 15.2 per cent of the resident population in 2020, an increase from 9.0 per cent in 2010 (Chart 1.1). By contrast, the proportion of residents aged below 15 years fell to 14.5 per cent in 2020 from 17.4 per cent a decade ago.

The median age of the resident population rose from 37.4 years in 2010 to 41.5 years in 2020 (Chart 1.2).

Age Dependency Ratios

Overall, the dependency ratio increased to 54.0 in 2020 from 50.0 in 2010 as the increase in old-age dependency ratio (residents aged 65 years and over per 100 residents aged 20-64 years) outpaced the drop in child dependency ratio (residents aged below 20 years per 100 residents aged 20-64 years). Reflecting the changes in the age profile of the population, the child dependency ratio decreased from 36.5 in 2010 to 30.6 in 2020, while the old-age dependency ratio increased from 13.5 to 23.4 over the same period (Chart 1.3).

The ethnic composition of the resident and citizen population remained stable. In 2020, Chinese, Malays and Indians constituted 74.3 per cent, 13.5 per cent and 9.0 per cent of the resident population respectively (Chart 1.4). Among the citizen population, the shares of Chinese, Malays and Indians were 75.9 per cent, 15.0 per cent and 7.5 per cent respectively.

MARRIAGE AND FERTILITY

Marital Status

The proportion of married residents dropped slightly to 58.8 per cent in 2020 from 59.4 per cent in 2010 (Chart 2.1). Those who were either divorced or separated increased from 3.3 per cent in 2010 to 4.3 per cent in 2020.

There continued to be a larger share of widowed residents among females than males, due in part to the higher life expectancy for women. In 2020, the proportion of residents who were widowed was 8.4 per cent for females as compared to 1.9 per cent for males.

With the ageing of the resident population coupled with lower singlehood rates among the older ages, the proportion of singles declined from 32.2 per cent in 2010 to 31.5 per cent in 2020.

Chart 2.1 Marital Status of Resident Population Aged 15 Years and Over by Sex

Proportion of Singles by Age Group

Type of Dwelling

A dwelling refers to a building or part of a building used or intended to be used by one or more persons as living quarters. Each dwelling has its own separate entrance(s) with direct access to a public road or pathway. A dwelling may be a residential building by itself, or a unit in a residential building, or part of a non-residential building such as a shop or factory with space used as living quarters.

The dwellings covered are broadly classified into these three housing unit categories: Housing and Development Board (HDB) properties, condominiums and other apartments, and landed properties.

The Singapore Standard Classification of Type of Dwelling (Jan 2012) is used to classify the population and households by type of dwelling.

Appendix

Sample Design and Sampling Variability

Sample Design and Selection

The sample for the Census of Population 2020 was selected from a sampling frame comprising all residential dwelling units in Singapore. As the sample survey of the Census 2020 covered only households in residential dwellings, institutions such as military camps, hostels and hotels were excluded from the frame.

The sample was selected based on a stratified design. Dwelling units in the sampling frame were divided into different groups. The groups are defined based on the planning areas demarcated by the Urban Redevelopment Authority and broad dwelling type groups. A random sample was then selected from the different groups by systematic sampling with a random start. The samples selected from each group were combined to form the required sample of about 150,000 dwelling units.

Sampling Variability

As the survey estimates are based on information obtained from a fraction of the population instead of the whole population, the precision of estimates derived from the sample survey are affected by sampling errors. Sampling errors refer to the difference between the estimate based on a sample and its 'true' population value that would result if the whole population has been surveyed.

The extent of sampling error of an estimate under a particular sample design is assessed by the variability of the estimate across all possible samples under the design. One common measure of this variability is given by the standard error (SE), which is the standard deviation of the sampling distribution of the estimate. Another measure is the relative standard error (RSE), which is obtained by expressing the standard error as a percentage to the estimate. The smaller the RSE, the more precise is the estimate.

Generalised Sampling Errors Tables

From Table A1, the DEFT¹ for most of the selected attributes (T_Y) is about 1. It is impractical to compute and display the sampling error for each and every of the possible estimates such as the total number of elements in the population with a given attribute Y from the Census 2020. Thus, generalized sampling errors tables are provided instead as a guide to data users for estimating the errors of any estimates.

Since most of the attributes in Table A1 have DEFT about 1, data users should generally use Table A2 (DEFT value of 1) to determine sampling errors for the attribute of interest. For attributes of individuals with larger DEFT, such as language most frequently spoken at home, data users can refer to Table A3 (DEFT value of 2).

The smaller the estimate, the larger is the RSE. This implies that sample estimates of a rare characteristic would have high RSEs and users would have to be careful in drawing inferences based on the sample estimates.

Simple Guide on Using Relative Standard Error and Confidence Interval

To compute the 95% confidence interval of an estimate of persons with size 1,100,000 as below.

Step 1: From Table A2, the RSE of this estimate is close to 0.3%

Step 2: To compute 95% confidence interval of the estimate

$$\text{Lower Confidence Interval} = 1,100,000 - 1.96 \times 0.3\% \times 1,100,000 = 1,093,532$$

$$\text{Upper Confidence Interval} = 1,100,000 + 1.96 \times 0.3\% \times 1,100,000 = 1,106,468$$

$$\text{95\% Confidence Interval} = (1,093,532, 1,106,468)$$

There is a 95% chance that the 'true' population value is between 1,093,532 and 1,106,468.
